

Abstract

The invention relates firstly to the use of a solution composed of at least one solvent and at least one non-ionic surfactant as a carrier system for at least one active substance. The invention secondly provides a composition composed of such a solution with at least one active substance. The nonionic surfactant is preferably an alkylphenoxypolyethoxyethanol. Preferred active substances are washing-active substances, washing composition additives, cosmetic active ingredients, pharmaceutical active ingredients and disinfectants.